PRICE TWO CENTS

SET FOR TRIAL AT FRANKLIN

The Celebrated Contested Will Case of Godfrey vs. Ruddick up
Wednesday.

$18,000 ESTATE IS INVOLVED.

Sensational Evidence May Be Introduced.—Seymour People Interested in the Trial.

The contested will case of H. W. Godfrey vs. Laura L. Ruddick after long delays is expected to come to trial in the Johnson circuit court at Franklin Wednesday. Godfrey seeks to break the will of his wife in which she left all her property valued at about $18,000 to her sister, Mrs. Ruddick. Godfrey charges that his wife was of unsound mind at the time the will was executed and that she was unduly influenced by the sister. The latter was practically raised by Mrs. Godfrey and lived with the latter and her husband for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey formerly lived in Seymour, moving from here to Columbus about six years ago. Mrs. Godfrey died in March 1910. Her will was short and in it no reason was assigned for not remembering her husband.

Albert Kasting of this city was named in the will as executor. The property disposed of by Mrs. Godfrey was inherited from her father and at the time of her death was in the hands of the administrator of her father's estate. Godfrey, the plaintiff in the present suit is supposed to be worth from $30,000 to $40,000. The suit to break the will was first filed at Columbus last summer and after postponement from one term to another was finally taken to Johnson county on change of venue some time ago. The trial is expected to be a great legal battle and there are reports that some sensational evidence may be introduced. There is a strong array of Columbus, Franklin and Seymour attorneys in the case. Among them are Elsner & Kasting and Frank Jones who represent the executor. Mr. Jones went to Franklin this afternoon and Mr. Kasting will leave for there in the morning.

Great interest in the trial will be taken in Seymour.

Police Protection.

A strike has been causing considerable trouble for Ewing Shields who has several brick street contracts at Princeton. After some of the men quit on the strike he put others in their places. Last week he had 38 men at work but their work was done under police protection. The trouble it is understood has about been adjusted. The state labor commissioner visited Princeton and while there notified the city officers that the men on the street contract must be given protection or the state would furnish it.

Millinery Opening.

The spring opening at the Palace Millinery will be held Thursday and Friday of this week. All the new pattern and dress hats of the latest styles will be on display. An invitation to attend the opening is extended.

CITY MUST PAY

Fumigation After Quarantine Must be at Public Expense.

Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health, has instructed Dr. John F. Criswell, health officer of Columbia City, that the town authorities must pay for fumigating buildings where contagious diseases have been found. In a letter to the state board, Dr. Criswell told the secretary that the town board had refused to make allowances for such fumigation. A copy of Dr. Hurty's letter, setting out the law compelling boards to make such allowances, was forwarded to L. H. Kocher, clerk of the town board. The secretary's action was taken by direction of the state board.

This application of the law will apply equally to Seymour where all churches, theatres and public buildings were recently fumigated. Here the understanding was that the expense of fumigating would be borne by the owners or managers and not by the city. But in following Dr. Hurty's instructions the expense is transferred to the city for all fumigating done.

NO PARDON

For John R. Walsh is the Latest Word From Washington.

Dispatches from Washington state that practically all chance of executive clemency being extended John R. Walsh has disappeared. The President has had before him for several weeks the application for clemency and the Department of Justice has made an exhaustive investigation into the evidence presented at the trial of the banker and inquired into his physical condition.

From sources close to President Taft it was learned that he will follow the recommendation of Attorney General Wickersham. It is understood that Mr. Wickersham recommended that inasmuch as Walsh will be paroled under the new Federal law next September, justice would be better served if executive clemency were not extended to him.

APPLES SCARCE.

Only a Few Barrels Now in Storage at the Ebner Plant.

Apples are becoming scarce in this county and practically all that are now being sold at the groceries are shipped in. The Ebner Ice & Cold Storage Co. had between 2,500 and 3,000 barrels in their local storage plant last fall. This did not include the apples farmers had stored there for the winter. The company has sold all of its supply and only 25 or 30 barrels belonging to the farmers are in storage at the plant now. Early in the season the Ebner Company shipped many apples but since then has been selling only to the local market.

First Automobile.

Brown county is celebrated for lots of things. Among automobile men it is famous for the fact that nobody has ever been able to induce a Brown county resident to buy a automobile. A physician in Nashville, has the first machine so far shipped to any of the rural folk. Brown county is one hill after another. Its roads are good except for the grades. Now that the train has been made, other sales will probably follow and Brown county will rank with the rest of the state as a user of cars.

CITY SCHOOLS WILL NOT CLOSE

On Account of the Meeting of the Teachers' Association at Indianapolis.

TOO MUCH TIME HAS BEEN LOST
The New Law Allows Teachers Pay For Three Days For Attending Association Meetings.

The Seymour city schools will not adjourn this year to allow the teachers to attend the meeting of the Southern Indiana Teachers' Association at Indianapolis this week. So much time has been lost on account of the erection of the new Shields building and the closing of the schools during the scarlet fever quarantine that the school officials and teachers did not consider it wise to lose more time.

The teachers all agreed upon this notwithstanding the fact that they could have drawn pay while attending the meeting of the association in Indianapolis.

Formerly township trustees and school boards were not empowered to pay teachers for attending associational meetings but at the last session of the legislature a change was made in the law according to the construction of the act made by state superintendent Charles Greathouse. In answer to numerous inquiries he has given out the following statement:

"The last legislature passed a law permitting township trustees and school boards to adjourn school to enable the teachers to attend educational meetings and to visit model schools under the direction of the proper school officials. The number of days for which teachers may draw pay while attending the meetings is limited to three. This law contained an emergency clause and is now in force. The law is of peculiar interest at this time for the reason that the Southern Indiana Teachers' association will meet in Indianapolis on March 30, 31 and April 1, and the Northern Indiana Teachers' association will meet at Indianapolis April 6, 7 and 8. A number of school officials have written to the state superintendent, to the board of public accounts and to the attorney general inquiring whether in paying their teachers for attending such meetings they should be paid out of the tuition fund or special fund. After careful investigation it has been decided that such payment may be made from either the tuition fund or the special school fund."

HANOVER GLEE CLUB

Please Large Audience at the Shields High School.

The Hanover Glee Club gave a concert in the auditorium of the Shields High School Monday evening which was greatly enjoyed by all who were present. Although the room was chilly and the performance did not begin until 8:30, the boys put sufficient enthusiasm and energy into their work to make everyone forget their physical discomfort in the enjoyment of the program. There were five Seymour boys in the organization, Coulter, Frank, Kenneth and Merrill Montgomery and Henry Cobb. The presence of the home boys in the organization added greatly to the local interest and their reception by a home audience was certainly very pleasing to them.

The quartet was probably the most popular feature of the program and its numbers were all greatly enjoyed. The selections by the orchestra, which was composed entirely of Seymour boys, were all pleasing and received the applause of the audience. The solo work by Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Allison and the cornet solo by Frank Montgomery brought forth great applause. In fact, there were numerous encores during the program and almost every number on the program was recalled.

The Glee Club left over the B. & O. S-W. at 2:00 o'clock this afternoon for Salem where they will appear in the new high school building this evening. The attendance at the concert here was good and the Glee Club will be welcomed in Seymour again if they decide to come this way another year.

Taken to Prison.

William Wilson, the Crothersville man who last week was convicted of larceny was taken to the Michigan City prison today. Leland Perry and Arthur Moore who confessed to being implicated in the same robbery were taken to Jeffersonville reformatory Monday. Crothersville people generally are relieved that the three men are gone from the town. There is a strong suspicion that Perry may have been responsible for some of the petty thefts which were so frequent in the town for some time. After he left these robberies ceased.

Tonight's Lecture.

Many people are interested in the lecture tonight at the High school assembly room at 8 o'clock by Prof. G. H. Moulton. He says the sick, the nervous, the despondent, the mother, teacher and student, all classes get good from his lectures. He teaches the uses of the laws of health. The lecturer exposes many frauds, especially mind reading tricks. The lecture tonight will be free.

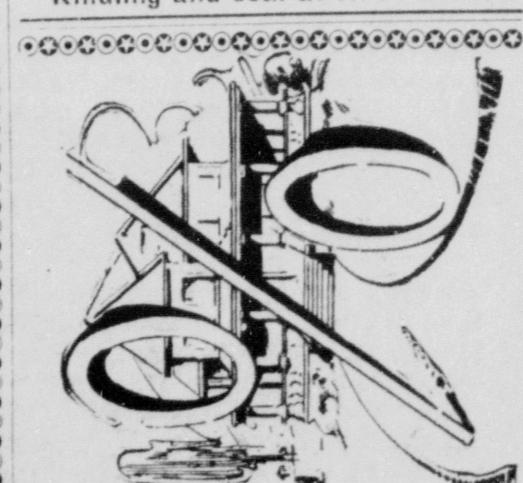

Lecture at Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Rose Pearce, recording secretary of the State W. C. T. U., who will lecture in the Presbyterian church Thursday evening at 7:30, is a very interesting speaker and a woman of charm and magnetism. Do not fail to hear her. A most beautiful musical program has been arranged and all music lovers have a treat in store for them.

OFFICERS ARE INVESTIGATING

Men Who Dynamited Factory at Columbus Reported to Have Gone From Seymour.

SHERIFF WORKING ON CLEW.

Came To Seymour but Obtained Little New Information.—Still On The Hunt.

A careful investigation is being made in Seymour and other cities near Columbus to learn about suspicious characters who might have gone to Columbus the night of the explosion which partly wrecked the big Caldwell & Drake plant there.

The officials and detectives have been working on a clew in which Seymour is concerned.

The investigation made by officers revealed the fact that four men whose identity is not known went from Seymour the night of the explosion and were later seen in the vicinity of the iron works.

Sheriff Miller of Bartholomew county and former sheriff Irvin A. Cox came to Seymour and made a careful investigation but their work did not result in finding out who the men were or adding to the information they already had regarding the trip of the quartet.

Whether the four men were local characters or strangers can not be ascertained. The officers are still on the trail and this with other clews is being carefully followed up.

Some of the officers who came here, in their investigation led some with whom they talked to infer that they were after men wanted for dynamiting in the river.

The dastardly outrage at the iron works is still a matter of absorbing interest in Columbus. The police there believe they have a tip that will lead to important results soon. The reward for the apprehension of the guilty parties has been increased to $1,000 and it may further increase.

Caldwell & Drake, proprietors of the plant, have taken precaution to prevent the wrecking of buildings which they are erecting. At Lebanon, guards have been placed about the court house which is being built by the firm.

Floral, Ark.—"I must speak a good word for Cardui," writes Mrs. Viola Baker, of this place.

"About a month ago I was in very bad health. I was so weak and nervous that I was not able to do my housework."

"My husband bought me one bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic. I took it according to directions and now I am in good health."

"I think Cardui is a fine tonic for weak women."

And you are not the only lady who thinks so, Mrs. Baker.

Thousands, like you, have written to tell of the wonderful benefit Cardui has given to them.

Cardui contains no minerals, or other powerful drugs. It contains no glycerin or other mawkish-tasting ingredients.

CREATED A STIR AT SAN ANTONIO

Army Agitated By Rumor of Diaz's Resignation.

CONFIRMATION IS LACKING

On Heels of This Most Significant Rumor Comes Another That the Maderos Are to Meet Senor De La Barra at San Antonio For Probably Pacific Conference—Hospital Reserves Raised to War Footing.

San Antonio, Tex., March 28.—On top of several other very important developments, a report that President Diaz of Mexico had resigned, unconfirmed here as yet through any direct Mexican channel, dropped in. The news served to intensify indications that a great deal is afoot at the capital of Mexico, at Washington, and even in Paris, that is only partially revealed.

One fact comes as a positive statement. That is that Francisco L. Madero, the provisional president of insurgent Mexico and leader of the insurgents in the field, is now on his way to San Antonio and will likely be here within the next forty-eight hours. Francisco Madero, sr., and his son Gustavo, now enroute from New York, will join Alfonso and Julio, the other sons of the Madero family, here ready. Francisco De La Barra, late ambassador of Mexico to the United States, and newly appointed minister of foreign affairs in the just born cabinet of Diaz, is due to arrive in San Antonio tomorrow morning.

Every circumstance supports the belief that the reunion of the Maderos, which can only be accomplished with difficulty by the fighting Francisco at the head of the Mexican junta in the southwest and the coming of De La Barra at the same time, has more significance than a mere coincidence. Should De La Barra find it in his convenience to stop over for a day in San Antonio on his way to Mexico City, that circumstance would be all that was needed to confirm the belief that definite negotiations were on between the strong family of the insurgents and the strongest man in the new government that Diaz contrived to build after the resignation of the old oligarchy last Friday.

Strengthens War Rumors.

The second incident of moment here where the army is, has a bearing on the purpose of the army's mobilization. Thirty-five first lieutenants of the United States army medical reserve corps have arrived in camp here straight from Washington. There are fifty more on the way. The field and division hospitals at the camp are not lacking in medical staffs. They are fully equipped to care for the needs of the 10,000 men now assembled here in time of peace. The sick rate has continued to be below the normal, so it was said by General Carter.

With no word of the coming of any additional regiments, these first of eighty-five extra doctors, graduates of the army medical college at Washington, and holding commissions in the regular hospital service of the army, are added to the full staff of the Fort Sam Houston "maneuver" camp.

The medical reserve corps is, as its name indicates, a provision for emergency purposes. Army regulations state that the corps shall be called upon in time of war. General Carter said that the thirty-five doctors who have arrived had come merely to get a little field practice.

If the report of Diaz's resignation proves to be true it is problematical what effect that act will have upon the action of General Reyes, the former minister of war and beloved of all the Mexican army, who has been living for some time in Paris because of certain conditions which made his residence nearer Diaz unwise. J. P. Diddap, a Mexican, who says that he is attached in a confidential capacity to the Mexican legation in Washington and has come to San Antonio on a secret mission, said that General Reyes will sail from Paris today for New York and that he is returning to accept the portfolio of the war department in Mexico City.

Enrique Orneales, the Mexican consul at San Antonio, was present when Senor Diddap made this statement, and he did not deny it. Diddap added that Senor De La Barra, the newly appointed minister for foreign affairs, knew that he was slated for his present promotion as far back as last January, and he volunteered the statement that "De La Barra was the man who brought about the resignation of the old ministry and who dictated the selection of the new."

To all of which the Mexican consul gave negative assent by saying nothing.

RESULT OF LATEST OPTION ELECTIONS

The Drys Hold Warsaw But Wets Take Ligonier.

Warsaw, Ind., March 28.—Monday local option elections were held in this city, in thirteen of the seventeen townships of the county, and at every polling place the women of the W. C. T. U. and hundreds of others were at the polls, despite the fact that the wind was blowing a forty-mile gale, accompanied by snow flurries that added to the cold. The chief contest by the wets was made in this city, the townships being conceded to the drys from the start. A heavy vote was polled and Warsaw voted dry by a majority of 371.

Wets Win Ligonier.

Ligonier, Ind., March 28.—After a heated campaign of three weeks this city voted Monday under the local option law, as did also three of the townships. This city gave a wet majority of 150. The townships voted dry.

Today's Option Elections.

Princeton, Ind., March 28.—Both wets and drys are claiming Princeton in the option election today. Oakland City will elect, too, as will White River township, in which Patoka and Hazelton are situated.

Other buildings were damaged. The losses are: Lennert's cigar store, $10,000; Sowder's liquor store, $10,000; colored Masons and colored Knights of Pythias, $2,000; damage to other buildings in the neighborhood, $3,000. MARK TWAIN ONCE SAID

"It is Spring Fever that causes the general unrest, lack of ambition and run-down condition which pervades the human system in the Spring of the year."

The sudden change from frigid to torrid weather occurs within a few weeks, especially in our northern states.

No wonder pulmonary troubles—pneumonia, spring fever, and all such ailments are almost universal.

If people in this vicinity only knew the value of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) at this season of the year, we would not be able to get enough to supply the demand.

Vinol tones up the digestive organs, purifies and enriches the blood, promotes healthful sleep and a normal appetite.

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women, those suffering from bronchitis, chronic coughs and colds, all derive great benefit from its use.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

The capital of the territory of Magellan, belonging to Chile, is Punta Arenas, the southernmost city in the world, with a population of about 12,000, good wharfs and stores, paved streets and extensive traffic. All vessels going through the strait stop at Punta Arenas, and much wool is shipped from there. It is a free port, has a wireless telegraph station, is a station for the Chilean navy and does a large business in the cooling of steamers. It is, in fact, a crossroad station between the east and the west.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment.

Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a tea-spoonful. TROUBLES AND JOYS.

The trouble with most of us is that our joys seem to sink out of sight in some inner quagmire and our pains seem to take root on the thinnest soil and flourish like the proverbial bay tree. What is the matter with us that a little irritation today can wipe out in a moment all the recollection of yesterday's glory?

A Box That Moved of Itself

By GROVER J. GRIFFIN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

There's no telling what young people between childhood and man or woman hood will do. There is a case on record of a girl of thirteen shopping with her mother who disappeared in a throng. The police hunted for her for a long while without getting any trace of her. The case was given up as one of those mysterious disappearances that are never solved. But the girl turned up finally, and what do you suppose was the cause of her disappearance? She had gone off voluntarily through a whim, or, rather, a romantic desire to try the world on her own account.

But a stranger case than this came under my observation. I am a freight agent on a railroad, and it happened in the freight house in which I am employed. One afternoon I received a box about six feet long by two feet broad and deep. It weighed, I should think, about a hundred pounds. It was marked: "Glass, Handle With Care. This Side Up." Near one end was also written, "If Stood on End This End Up."

I received the box on the platform, and, since I didn't care to be saddled with broken property, I laid it carefully on a truck, wheeled it into the freight house and, being crowded for room, stood it on end, being particular to put the end up as directed. I noticed that the top was neither nailed nor screwed on, and I wondered how it had been fixed as firmly as it was. But this was merely a passing thought, for I didn't take the interest and had not the time to investigate the way lids were fastened, provided they were secure.

I received the box about 6 in the evening and after disposing of it and other freight locked up and went home to supper. Having some statements to make up in the evening, I returned to the freight house, lighted up and went to work in the little space fenced off for an office. I was figuring when I heard a cough outside.

The idea occurred to me that some one was in the freight house. The door being right beside my office, no one could have entered without my knowing it; consequently some one had come in surreptitiously. No one would be likely to do that except for the purpose of robbery. All this passed through my brain in one-tenth the time it has taken to tell it. The first thing I did was to open a drawer in my desk and take out a revolver.

Thus armed, I went out in among the freight and looked about. I admit I dreaded being shot from a dark corner, but for that matter I could have been shot while sitting at my desk. I saw nothing, heard nothing, and after walking about for awhile I made up my mind I had been mistaken. I started to go back to the office and had reached the door when I heard a giggle.

All idea of fear left me at once. Tossing my revolver on to my desk, I turned and went back for another hunt. Passing the box that had been marked to be carefully handled I noticed that instead of the top one of the sides faced me. I knew very well that the box could not have moved itself and suspected that here was the solution of the matter. Going up to it

FADED BUILDING "FIRE PROOF"

But It Was None the Less
a Death Trap.

INVESTIGATORS ARE AT WORK

Three Different Official Boards Are Engaged on the Task of Locating the Responsibility For Conditions
Which Made Possible Awful Holocaust in a New York Shirtwaist
Factory Saturday Afternoon.

New York, March 28.—The fire marshal, the district attorney and the board of coroners of Manhattan, the three groups of investigators who are seeking to ascertain the cause of the many deaths at the fire of last Saturday in the Asch building, have got down to hard work. The death list is now definitely fixed at 143.

Andrew Carnegie headed the list of contributors to a fund to be distributed among the families of the survivors of the fire with a gift of $5,000. The fund has approached the sum of $15,000. The tenor of the reports turned in by the three groups of investigators was that the building was "fire proof," but that many girls would have escaped if the doors to the stairway at the northeast corner of the three floors had been unlocked and opened outward.

The line of people in East Twentieth street, who sought admission to the morgue where all the unidentified bodies were removed from the charred pier, was as long yesterday as on Sunday. The crowd thinned out late in the afternoon, but was beginning to stretch westward to First avenue again after dark when a thunder storm and downpour drove those away who had no real business there.

Two men came to the morgue five times to look at the charred body of a woman in whose stocking the police on Sunday had found $869. Although the men seemed positive that the woman was Mrs. Julia Rosen of 78 Clinton street, Commissioner Driscoll decided not to turn over the body, because of the sum of money found on it, to the men until they had brought a relative of Mrs. Rosen to the morgue.

The two men came back for the sixth time about 4:30 o'clock, leading a little girl, Esther Rosen, a daughter of the woman. Esther identified her mother, and a death certificate was made out and permission given to the men to take the body away. Little Esther said that her mother, widow, who came here from Austria four years ago, was afraid to bank her savings, and always carried her money with her. The mother was planning, so the child said, to buy a small house in the country when she had saved a few hundred dollars more.

One hundred and fifteen bodies have been identified altogether, which included those who had died in hospitals. There were 133 bodies taken from the fire to the morgue, 105 of which have been identified there, leaving twenty-eight corpses still lying in the uncovered coffins.

Most of these twenty-eight are merely black lumps, with perhaps only a buttoned shoe or bit of cloth skirt clinging to the remains. Fully 500 visitors to the morgue said that the girl they were looking for wore "a blue skirt." There were no blue skirts around any of the dead.

From Samuel Bernstein, the general manager, and Louis Brown, a machinist, both on the eighth floor, it was brought out that the fire originated in a lot of clippings from the shirtwaist material near a cutting table on the east side of the building next to the second window from the elevator. There was no way to tell just what had caused it. There was a rule against smoking, but the floor, nevertheless, was found strewn with cigarette butts. Although not established by the testimony, the belief of the fire marshal is that somebody threw a match or a cigarette in the clippings, as a favorite time for lighting cigarettes in such places is just about quitting hour.

Nis on the Uniform, Says He.
Rome, March 28.—Sig. Bissolati, leader of the Socialist party in the chamber of deputies, has declined to enter the cabinet now being formed by Sig. Giolitti. Bissolati gives as his reason the fact that he cannot see his way clear to wearing a uniform on state occasions, as is required in the case of cabinet ministers.

WILL MAKE TEST OF NEW POWERS

Indiana Railway Commission to Start Inquiry.

UNIFORM FREIGHT RATES

Assisted by the Manufacturers' and
Shippers' Association, the Commission
Will Take Up the Matter of Uniformity on Like Freight Classes
Just as Soon as New Law Increases
Its Powers Is Promulgated.

Indianapolis, March 28.—The railroad commission, as soon as practicable after the issuance of the governor's proclamation declaring the acts of the recent session of the general assembly to be in force, will start an inquiry, under the new powers of the commission, into railway freight rates in the state, with a view to establishing uniformity on like freight classes. Whether the inquiry will be made as a reopening of the old inquiry along this line, known in commission annals as "Case No. 161," or whether a new case will be introduced, has not been determined. The commission began an inquiry into the question last fall, but delayed its completion because of the movement among all the railroads of the country to increase rates. Had these proposed rates gone into effect they would have brought about much uniformity.

The Interstate commerce commission, however, denied the right to increase rates as was proposed, leaving the rates in Indiana in their former state of non-uniformity. It is expected that the railroad commission will again be assisted in its inquiry into the rates by the Manufacturers' and Shippers' association and by the Indianapolis freight bureau, both of which organizations assisted in the former inquiries.

Caldwell & Drake Maintaining Guard
Around Boone County Courthouse.

Columbus, March 28.—Representatives of the Caldwell & Drake company, the contractors whose office here and whose building at Omaha were dynamited early Friday morning, have prepared a statement formally charging organized labor with the outrage, but on advice of the detectives the statement was withheld from publication. A reward of $1,000 has been offered here for the arrest of the dynamiters. The firm has placed a strong guard around the new court house at Lebanon which they are constructing, and it is believed will maintain the guard till the building is finished and turned over to the county.

Was Without Result.

Albany, N. Y., March 28.—The new joint caucus of legislators called to meet in the assembly chamber last night to nominate a candidate for United States senator in place of W. F. Sheehan was without result. Only four insurgents attended. It will require the votes of one-fourth of the Democratic insurgents to elect a United States senator. Dr. Rush, formerly speaker of the assembly, who on Jan. 16 placed Sheehan in nomination in a ringing speech last night re-nominated Mr. Sheehan, and his remarks were greeted with cheers. Two dozen additional Democrats were placed in nomination. The ballot gave Sheehan 28 votes; Van Wyck, 7; Fitzgerald, 6, and others less. Ninety senators and assemblymen voted.

CHANGE OF VENUE

Will Probably Bring Sharick Case to Jackson County.

The trial of Justus W. Sharick, the Frankfort hotel man who is charged with having been an accessory of Walter Neal in defrauding the Scottsburg State Bank out of about $900 last July is set for next Monday at Scottsburg.

It is probable however that the case will not be tried there.

John M. Lewis of this city, one of the attorneys for Sharick appeared in court this morning at Scottsburg and gave notice that a change of venue from Scott county would be asked.

Argument on the motion for a change will be heard by Judge Shea Wednesday.

It is probable the case will be sent to Jackson county for trial.

Neal who some time ago was convicted of defrauding the bank it is expected will be a prosecuting witness. Sharick insists that he had no connection with the fraud and that Neal implicated him in an effort to shift the responsibility for the act and to secure leniency for himself.

NEXT MONDAY

Last Day For Filing Remonstrances Against Street Improvement.

Next Monday is the last day on which a remonstrance can be filed to defeat any of the proposed street improvements. Eighty per cent. of the resident property holders affected by the proposed improvement of any street must sign the remonstrance to make it effective. It is not known yet whether there will be a remonstrance that will bear the names of enough property owners to defeat the improvement of any of the streets.

A remonstrance is being circulated on Walnut street and it is understood one is contemplated on Ewing street though it is not out yet.

The law provides that a remonstrance must be filed within ten days after the adoption of the preliminary resolution for an improvement. In the present case the resolution was adopted March 23.

Another Romance Spoiled.

At the risk of his life the brave man had rushed into the middle of the suburban street, grasped the bridle of the runaway horse and ended the mad race of the panting animal. Then he modestly smiled at the erstwhile fainting lady who occupied the buggy.

"Say, you grinning idiot," snapped the lady hotly, "what did you butt in like that for?"

"Why—er—you see," stammered the hero, astounded, "wasn't your horse running away?"

"Back to Punkville for yours!" retorted the angry dame. "Why, you yap, there was a moving picture camera trained on this outfit, and now you've ruined an expensive film!"—Detroit Free Press.

No Help Needed.

A little miss of five years who had been allowed to stay up for an evening party was told about 8:30 to go to bed. Very, very slowly she moved toward the stair. An aunt, seeing her reluctance, asked, "Helen, can I do anything to help you?"

"No," replied Helen; "I will get there altogether too soon as it is."—Judge's Library.

SANE FOURTH WRECKS BIG FIREWORKS COMPANY.

Largest Concern in the Land Goes to the Wall.

Agitation for a noiseless Fourth of July has wrecked the Pain Manufacturing company of New York, the largest and best known of the fireworks companies of the United States. The spread of the movement for a "sane Fourth" is the reason given by the majority of the directors of the company for its present unprofitable condition.

Claimants for more than $500,000 damages for accidents and fatalities against the company are affected by its insolvency. According to the petition, only $10,000 unnumbered assets remain to pay $145,000 of claims. There is only $23.98 in the treasury at the present time, the directors say, to pay the claims, and the rent for the company's quarters is long overdue. What forced them to take the steps for dissolving the corporation, the directors say, was a judgment for $211 which they had no means to satisfy.

"The reason," the directors assert, "for the condition of the company is that the business conducted by the corporation does not begin until June and runs for several months. The main business is done around and immediately previous to the Fourth of July of each year. But for the last few years and since the movement for what is commonly known as the 'sane Fourth' has spread over the country the volume of business of the company has steadily decreased."

ELECTION UNITES BROTHERS.

Railroad President and Bricklayer Embrace After Fifty Years.

"Charley, do you remember the time I took you on horseback to the dentist and you had a tooth pulled?" asked John Markham, an aged bricklayer of Hopkinsville, Ky., of Charles Markham, new president of the Illinois Central railroad, when they met in Memphis recently for the first time since boyhood.

The railroad president replied, "Yes, I do, and you are my long lost brother."

With this query and answer the brothers clasped each other and tears flowed. John Markham had not seen his brother since he left him to join the army in the civil war.

John Markham did not know anything about the whereabouts of his brother until the latter was elected head of the Illinois Central. He at once got in touch with him, and the Memphis meeting was arranged.

The International Insurrection.

In Mexico from morning until night He led the insurrectos in the fight, Shouting, "Viva libertad!"

All the weapons that he had Were baseball bats and sticks of dynamite.

At wrecking bridges he was surely great.

He tore up every railroad in the state.

—Oh, a patriot was he.

Although he turned out to be An American and Harvard graduate!

Here's another insurrecto boldly swoops Down upon a body of federal troops.

He filled them with affright,

And he smote them left and right,

And while he fights he wildly yells and whoops.

He surely understands the fighting game,

And already he has won a lasting fame.

At maneuver or at rally

He is one grand hot tamale,

And Giuseppe Garibaldi is his name.

One morning when the fighting all was done

And the troops were cheering for the victory won

Stretched out upon the sand

With a saber in his hand

They found their leader lying in the sun.

He was only slightly wounded in the knee,

So they carried him until they found a tree.

Laid him in a shady place

Washed the dust from off his face,

And he proved to be Matsuro Hokichi.

When we read of the exploits of comrades three

We did not even guess who they could be;

But, like the musketeers

Whose memory endears.

They are noted for their skill and bravery

But the news we got from Mexico one day

Told us how they came off victors in the fray.

How they battled side by side

By the Rio Grande's tide,

And we found their names were Kelly,

Burke and Shea.

"Has your husband an old suit that he ain't usin', ma'am?" asked the tramp, respectfully removing from his head the shapeless remnant of a hat.

"No!" shortly answered the woman of the house, eying him suspiciously.

"My husband has only one suit, and it'll last him six months yet."

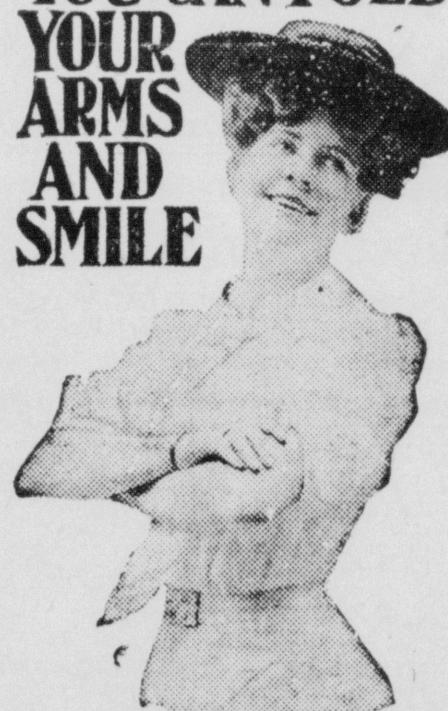

"All right, ma'am," he rejoined, taking from an inside pocket a soiled scrap of cardboard and making memorandum on it with the stump of a lead pencil. "I'll be round ag'in six months from today. Afternoon, ma'am!"—Stray Stories.

Wanted It Realistic.
A certain New York theatrical manager is noted for the exquisite beauty of his stage settings. One day, rehearsing a moonlight scene, he found fault with the moon. First the moon was too bright, then it was too dull. Now its beams were too yellow and now they were too pale. Finally, after holding up the rehearsal for twenty minutes, the manager tore out in a great rage to arrange the moon himself. On the stage a pause ensued. During the pause the leading lady said wearily to the villain:

"Oh, dear! What are we waiting for now?"

"Nothing much," the villain answered. "The boss wants a real moon, and he's gone to fetch it, that's all."

The New Head Of House of Rothschild

HERE must be a new ruler chosen to succeed to the throne of the Rothschilds, which was made vacant by the death of Baron Albert Rothschild, head of the Vienna house. According to the custom of the family, which was inaugurated a century ago, the members of the Paris, London and Vienna houses must meet to choose their leader. The head of the London house, Lord Nathaniel Mayer Rothschild, who was an intimate friend of the late King Edward, probably will be chosen on account of his recognized ability. When the founder of the house died in 1812 he called his sons around him and told them always to accept the counsel of the wisest. Their adherence to that command has built up the most powerful family in the financial world.

The name Rothschild dates back a little more than 100 years, when an ancestor kept a red shield over the door of his curiosity and pawnbroker's shop. From that he was called Red Shield or Rothschild. He was a Jew who was forced to hide in his ghetto by night and who was treated like a dog by day. His name was not even of sufficient importance to be recorded. He desired his son, Mayer Anselm, to become a rabbi.

Mayer Anselm went to school, but the desire to handle money, which he had learned in his father's shop, was strong upon him, and he soon turned at high water mark. Usually it has fifteen feet or less. Moreover, the bed of the Father of Waters has an uncomfortable habit of shifting overnight, as related by Mark Twain and other vivacious chroniclers. Just how a battleship as big as the Idaho is going to negotiate that kind of a fickle channel is not quite apparent. But we are assured that she will do it, as in May the water will be high to order, and the vessel will unload everything possible in preparation for the trip. The object of the voyage is to show President Taft and the world generally that the Mississippi is navigable by ships.

The Idaho is a battle ship of Class B—two screws, two funnels, two fighting tops, two primary turrets, 375 feet length, 77 feet beam, 13,000 tons displacement, four twelve-inch and many smaller guns and capable of seventeen knots an hour. In the vernacular, that is some battleship.

Women Carrying Canes.

Having recovered from the advent of the harem skirt, are you ready for another shock? Well, now that everybody's right hand is raised, go back to your seats and listen.

Two young women dressed in black velvet stepped from a drug store in Broadway, New York city, carrying black canes with crooked handles in a most mannish manner. It was really thrilling to see them thump the sidewalk with the tips every few feet. Men laughed when they beheld the young women; then, getting interested, the men followed. The pursuers had become a horde before the women slipped away into a department store.

BRITISH EARL KNITS SOCKS.

Says It Keeps Him From Smoking Too Much Tobacco.

The Earl of Ancaster, who is lord high chamberlain of the English court, has taken up the pastime of knitting socks in order to prove, for one thing, that he can practice his belief in the promotion of home industries. This at first excited the merriment of the duchess, who was formerly Miss Eloise Breese of New York, but it is under-

"Do you understand chess?" William asked.

"Sufficiently well to induce me, were the game mine, to castle on the king's side," was the answer.

The elector followed the advice and won the game. So well pleased was the elector that he and the merchant became friends. Now, the father of the elector was the man who sold the Hessian soldiers to King George during the American Revolution. He received $20,000,000 for their services, and when he died $5,000,000 was left, and this went to the son. After the battle of Jena Napoleon advanced on Hesse. William was afraid he would lose the money, so he gave it to his adviser of the chess game.

The bulk of the Hessian money was transferred to Nathan Mayer Rothschild, the most brilliant financier in the family. He took it across the mountains on muleback and finally reached Manchester, England, with it. Soon after that he opened business in London. At the time of the battle of Waterloo he was the leading financier. He anticipated the ticker of today by keeping track of the markets of Europe by the use of carrier pigeons.

Rothschild's greatest coup was after the battle of Waterloo. He had messengers to bring him reports of the movements of the armies, but for once he did not trust to messengers. He went himself. Just before the tide of battle had turned against Napoleon messengers hastened to London with the news that the battle was lost. It was not so with Rothschild. He waited until the old guard went down to defeat before the fire of the allies. Then he galloped to Ostend, from whence he went to the coast in a carriage.

The next morning Rothschild appeared at the exchange in his disheveled clothing. He stood by one of the columns a picture of despair. He said nothing to any one. The markets went down. Every one was anxious to sell. But the agents of Rothschild had been ordered to buy. When the news of Wellington's victory came later he was without a financial equal in Europe.

COUNTESS OF ANCASTER.

stood that she now not only sympathizes with the idea, but assists the earl in filling orders.

The earl insists that homemade socks are infinitely more comfortable to wear than the machine made variety. He acquired the practice by finding that when idly sitting around he smoked too much. He took up knitting, therefore, and found it was a great preventive of the undue use of tobacco.

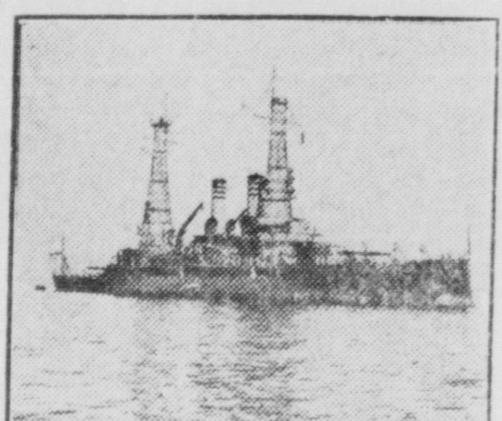

On hearing this confession the bishop of Lincoln immediately gave the earl an order for two pairs of socks, which was duly booked, and others in Burke's Peerage fell in with the fashion.

BATTLESHIP TO ST. LOUIS.

Idaho Will Navigate the Mississippi if There Is Enough Water.

The Business Men's league of St. Louis is excited, likewise jubilant, also a trifle chesty. The thing responsible for its condition is the report that the Idaho is going to steam all the way up the Mississippi and anchor off St. Louis, where the people can look at her. This is to happen in May.

Ordinarily the Idaho draws something more than twenty-four feet of water, and the Mississippi hardly ever has more than twenty-five feet, even

THE BATTLESHIP IDAHO.

THE SCHOOLMA'AM

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

We had no luck with our school at Turnerville—that is, with the teachers, for what's a school but a teacher, anyway? At last, when we'd just fired one of 'em, a good lookin' gal applied for the position and got it just because she wasn't like any of the rest of 'em. She was soft spoken and said she preferred managin' the children by kindness rather than any other way. Some of the teachers we'd had were great trouvers, and the boys didn't like 'em.

Miss Hathaway—that was her name—was engaged, and I must say the school settled right down to business. I don't know how much larin' the children got, but they was quiet as lambs. Some of us tried to find out how she done it by questionin' the scholars, but they didn't know. Some of 'em said that when she told 'em to keep quiet she looked at 'em in a way that convinced 'em better had.

The cashier of Boddle's bank fell in love with Miss Hathaway and wanted to marry her. She kep' him on the rack, not givin' him any decided answer. We who had children to eddicate hoped she wouldn't have him, for the school was doin' mighty well and had never succeeded before. The mothers were especially anxious, not that they was particular about their children gittin' larin', but because if the school wasn't runnin' and they had to take care of their young uns they hadn't no time to gossip over the fences that divided the back yards.

But somehow if Miss Hathaway brought us good luck with the school a heap of trouble came with her. There was raids made on the town by hoss thieves one after 't other till nearly every hoss in town was stole. It looked as though some un who had lived in the town was leadin' 'em, for they seemed to know just where every hoss was located. When there wasn't but a few hosses left their owners tried to hide 'em. But it didn't do no good—the thieves seemed to smell 'em and went right to where they was hid.

All this time Shinkley, the cashier of Boddle's bank that I tol' you about, was a-settin' up to Miss Hathaway. He had a fine iron gray hoss he paid $600 for that he used to drive her out with. He was awful afraid he'd lose the animal, and Miss Hathaway suggested that he keep him nights in the schoolhouse. Nobody wouldn't think of lookin' there for a hoss. He done it, and, sure enough, in the mornin' there was the hoss, safe and sound. But he only kep' the critter there a few nights when somepin' happened that he didn't need to keep him there any longer.

One night Shinkley visited the teacher, and when he went away they both went to the schoolhouse, which was close by, and put in the hoss. Then Shinkley kissed her good night, for she'd promised to marry him. He went home and to bed. He couldn't git no sleep because he was so happy at gettin' the only gal he'd ever seen that he wanted to marry.

That was in June, when the day breaks early. Between 3 and 4 o'clock in the mornin' Shinkley was awoke by a clatter of hoofs comin' down the street. Thinkin' it was the hoss thieves and wishin' to git a sight of 'em, he jumps out of bed and runs to the winder. He was in plenty of time to see all he wanted to. Five men was ridin' down the street, headed by a woman ridin' straddle, just as they was. When they got opposite the winder where Shinkley was looking out he see that the woman was the schoolteacher, and she was ridin' his iron gray hoss. She looked up at him and larfed.

"Much obleeged," she said, "for givin' me the combination of the safe. My friends have been after somepin' better than hosses this time. We got all the currency in the bank."

Then the feller ridin' next to the schoolmarm he sung out, "Take that for kissin' my wife!" And he fired a shot that went through a panel of glass just above the cashier's head.

Well, now, I reckon that cashier was mad. Nothin' makes anybody so mad as to git footed. Shinkley had been footed as to his affections, had lost his fine hoss and given away an entrance into the bank's safe.

Mebbe he didn't git a move on him! Without stoppin' to git into his clothes he run down and out, and, seein' a friend of his'n, that had a bicycle, he got him to follow the robbers while he got up a posse. Inside of ten minutes men was leavin' the town on wheels—they wasn't no hosses to ride—all armed with rifles. They didn't wait for one another, but as fast as Shinkley got a man out he sent him on. When Shinkley had started a dozen men he lit out himself.

The robbers, knowin' there was no hosses in the town, forgot about bicycles, and they didn't expect such a quick chase. They didn't hurry much. The bicycles closed up and made chase together. A hoss gits tired, and a bicycle doesn't, so every one of the robbers was taken.

Shinkley couldn't revenge himself on a woman by hurtin' her. The way he did it was by hangin' every one of the men includin' her husband, who had shot at him. She was forced to see one after another swung off, includin' her husband. When the ceremony was over they left her lyin' in a heap in the middle of the road. She was all gone up.

A POPULAR COLONIAL DESIGN.

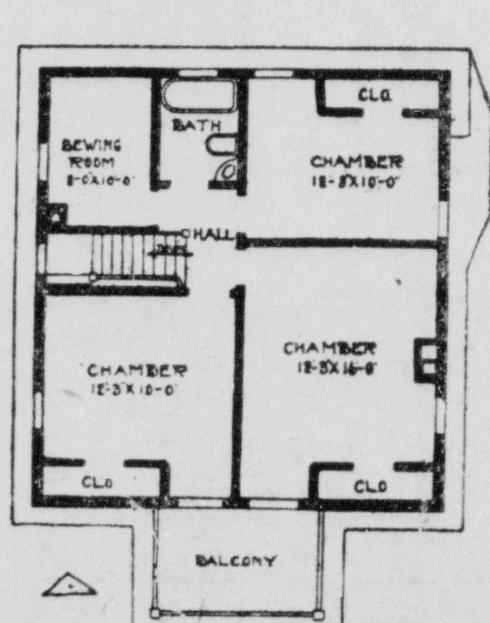

Design 399, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This design has proved very popular owing to its delightful colonial exterior, the double pitched roof, piazza and terraces. The interior arrangement is deserving of comment. From a vestibule one enters a reception hall. A grille partition incloses a den at the left. At the right is a sitting room and separated from it by sliding doors a very liberal dining room. The second story provides three chambers, a bath and sewing room. A gambrel roof always provides more space in the second story than a single pitched roof. Size 26 by 28 feet. The stories are nine feet and eight and a half feet. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $2,200.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 399 for $15.

“Alias Jimmy Valentine”

FREDERICK R. TOOMBS

Play by
PAUL ARMSTRONG

CHAPTER IX.

ASILENCE ensued. Valentine was plainly suffering from the blow. Then an expression of confidence came into Valentine's face. He seated himself on a sofa at the left of the room. "She'll be back," he said. "You fellows are just like Izzy Snedden. He always said women didn't amount to much. Guess that was because one of the barmaids at the Cheshire Cheese in London peached on him to the Scotland Yard bulls, and he had to make a quick getaway hidden under the coal in a freight steamer. But this girl is different from the kind of women you and I have known, boys. She saw there was something good in me, even when I wore the stripes, and she took me out of the reach of Warden Handler and 'solitaire'—'solitaire' boys. Does that mean anything to you?" Valentine's voice rose higher. "Yes, and she's going to do one thing more for me. She's coming back to me start on the square."

Red stepped close to Valentine, gripped his arm and hissed determinedly into his ears: "You know she won't. You don't think a straight girl would stand for a crook like you, do you—you, with the coppers always after you on account of some of the old stuff we did? Don't kid yourself, Jimmy. It's no go."

"If any other crook had dreamed a dream like that, what a laugh it would be, but now you go, Red—you and Avery."

Red rose quickly.

"What do you mean?" suspiciously.

The light of resolution shone in Valentine's eyes.

"I've quit," he said.

"What?" snapped Red and Avery together.

"I've quit."

"What about Doyle?" put in Avery. "He's heavy on your mind, ain't he, Avery? I can beat Doyle."

"You ain't going to lose that coin I've got staked out for an hour's work?" wailed Red. "Seven thousand if there's a dime!"

"Yes, I'll lose that."

"And a trip abroad to brace you up—a month in Paris?"

"Yes; I lose that too."

Red went on excitedly, bending tensely toward Valentine:

"But you won't lose the old thrill of going into a bank just before dawn,

"AND SEEING THE OLD SAFE OPEN UP LIKE AN OYSTER."

landing the watchman and feeling out a combination in the dark?"

"And hearing the coppers pass and try the door?" reminded Avery eagerly.

"And seeing the old safe open up like an oyster and grabbing the dough?" said Red alluringly.

"And make a clean getaway?" followed Avery.

"And the long jump and the landing in a swell cafe, Jimmy—eating the breakfast of the millionaire?" sang out Red.

"With the coin in your kick?" added Avery.

"And reading the papers and laughing our heads off at what suckers we made of the coppers—you ain't going to lose that, Jimmy?" Red pleaded, with every ounce of effort he could control.

Indecision had begun to show in Valentine's face, and now his surrender was complete.

"You got to me, Red," he announced then added eagerly: "Where is this layout you got? Can we get to it tonight?"

"Sure! It ain't two hours from here."

"It's a cinch," commented Avery deceptively.

Jimmy Valentine had surrendered indeed. His two one-time accomplices had cunningly played on his weakness for the thrills of the "crooked game." The thrills of it to him were more precious than the rewards. They were his rewards. Besides, the girl had not returned. She had paid the debt she owed to her rescuer, and that was all. Well, let her go, reasoned Valentine.

time. Never again would he commit the folly of placing faith in a straight girl!

"Wait!" he cried. "My hands are pretty tough. I couldn't feel the tick of grandfather's clock the way they are now, but I can beat that. I can sandpaper them down till I can feel the pulse in a dead man's wrist. Where's the—"

"We got him," whispered Bill Avery exultantly to Red. "We got him, an' he'll stick."

Hardy had Jimmy Valentine made his declaration to again join interests with Red Flanagan and Bill Avery than a bellboy entered the parlor, passing the name of "Mr. Valentine." Jimmy stepped forward hastily, seized an envelope bearing his name which the boy carried and excitedly tore it open. He found a brief note written in feminine penmanship. He read these words, and the color surged to his cheeks:

Please don't leave till I return. I inclose you a note Mrs. Webster asked me to give you. We saw her at the depot, where we went to reserve sleepers for tonight. ROSE LANE.

"What is it?" asked Avery, drawing near. "Something from Doyle, I'll bet."

"Yes, what is it?" questioned Red.

"It is the return of hope," answered Valentine, his emotion causing his voice to shake.

"You've weakened again?" sneered Red.

"No; I'm strong again."

"You mean that's from the girl?"

"She is coming back, Red, and there's nothing on this earth or in hell that can make me go wrong. You said a minute ago that if you thought I had a chance you'd stick."

"I said it."

"Then I hold you to that."

"Good God!" exclaimed Avery. "You're not goin' to turn square, too, Red?"

"I'm going with Jimmy. If I do a bit for him I got to go if he asks it."

"What am I goin' to do?" asked Avery plaintively.

Valentine drew close to him.

"I've got you a job, Bill, a good one," he announced.

"Me a job! Where?"

Valentine read from a note Mrs. Moore had left with him.

"Listen," he said. "This will introduce the man you promised the position as watchman of one of your grain elevators. The wages at $2.50 a day are satisfactory to him."

Intense disgust spread over Bill Avery's face.

Two-fifty a day," he sneered. "A man can't live on that."

Valentine laughed.

"It costs 31 cents a day to keep a man in Sing Sing," he reminded the thief.

"I don't want a job," snarled Avery. "Only the suckers work for a living."

"Yes, you do want one," returned Valentine, "and this is just your kind, Avery. And let me tell you something that you think I don't know. You're tired of being a crook—tired to death. I knew that when we were inside. But you are afraid of what a lot of old pals will say. Well, let them say what they got? Did you ever see a crook with anything? What do they amount to? They haven't the standing of a house dog. You're tired of it, Bill, and ashamed of the years you've lost, and I know it. Now here's your chance, your day of salvation. There's the letter and here's the coin to get there." He handed Avery some bills. "It's way out west where no one knows you, and you've got a chance. Just think, back to a mother and then ahead to—"

The hardened look began to fade from the thief's face.

"Give it to me," he clutched the money in his hand. "I'll try, by God, I'll try." Tears trickled down Avery's pale cheeks.

"That's the talk—that's the heart," spoke Valentine sympathetically.

"And if I fail I'll end it," said Avery.

"You won't fail. It's only the suckers that fail. Make the next train—brace up—get away."

Avery turned toward one of the entrances.

"Goodby, Jimmy. Goodby, Red," he cried, and he was gone.

"I tell you, Red," said Valentine, looking after him, "there isn't a crook you know who wouldn't go straight if he could."

"God," exclaimed Red feelingly, "but you know what's inside of a man."

"I know what's inside of me, and I dare face it."

Jimmy Valentine crossed to a window and peered out into the street. No one in sight that he knew, yet he had lost all doubt that Rose Lane would return. Her message had calmed his fears, and, more than that, it had come in time to save him from thrusting aside the one chance in the world to redeem his lost years.

Another thought rose strong within him as he returned to the sofa, seated himself and saw Red standing disconsolately near the table. Something had to be done for Red—that was certain. Red Flanagan was young—barely twenty-five—and he had many characteristics that were not at all bad. Valentine was convinced that his friend would remain loyal to him if he could take him with him and that he would become a man of honor and integrity if he received the proper encouragement. He felt it his duty to do this much for Red—give him a chance, the chance that would turn square half the thieves in the prisons if they could but obtain it.

And so he resolved that he would take Red with him wherever he went if possible to arrange it. Together they would baffle a way out of the morass of degradation and misery into which they had been plunged.

Red had been unfortunate in his early environment. Here lay the cause of his law-breaking career. Left an orphan in a crowded tenement on the east side of New York city at the age of thirteen, he had been taken care of by his uncle, a retired police captain, who operated a gambling house in Thirty-third street.

Four years later Red was placed in charge of the buffet in this establishment, which occupation he followed until a new district leader was elected. One night during horse show week the sound of lusty ax blows on the armored front door struck terror into the hearts of the employees and the fashionably attired players of faro, roulette, baccarat and poker.

"I KNOW WHAT'S INSIDE OF ME."

The lad's truthful testimony at the trial which followed so enraged his uncle that Red no longer found a home with him. Cast on his own resources, he was attracted by the glittering promises of an expert poker and faro dealer whom his uncle had employed. He joined with him in several trips on coasting steamers, "sitting in" with the gambler in poker games with the passengers and exchanging signals with him concerning the cards they held. He learned the art of denting the corners of the aces, kings, queens and jacks with his thumb nails so that in dealing with fingers sandpapered or worn almost to the bleeding point with pumice stone he could detect these indentations and know when and to whom he was dealing the high cards. From this it was only a step to a partnership with the great Jimmy Valentine, the man who could "cop a gopher" without any artificial aids.

All this was well known to Valentine. He himself had drifted into bad company in a manner somewhat similar. He could see in the lessons of his own experiences that Red's misdeeds were not entirely blamable on Red.

He was about to inform Red of his intention to aid him in a new career when he heard in the corridor the voice of Rose Lane addressing some one he believed must be her father.

"Here she is, Red," whispered Valentine, rising quickly. "You must get out till they go." But too late. At that instant Rose Lane entered, followed by her father. They saw Valentine standing by a suspicious looking young man with very red hair.

Valentine, realizing that he was on the verge of absolute ruin in the estimation of the girl and her already suspicious father, for he could hardly explain Red's presence, turned coldly toward the thief.

"I'm very sorry, sir," he said in indifferent tones, "but I don't know the man you are inquiring for. Never heard of him. Guess you had better inquire of the clerk at the hotel office."

Red, catching the hint, replied, "Thank you, sir; I will do so," and went out of the room, concealing a grinning face behind his hat.
